The announcement comes after Microsoft on Friday defeated a last-ditch effort by the US Federal Trade Commission to scuttle the 🫰 company' sR$68.7 billion purchase of Activision Blizzard. The Ninth Circuit Court of Appe als declined to grant the regulator an emergency stay 🫰 of a ruling that allows the deal to proceed in the US. The United Kingdom's Markets and Competition Authority (CMA) 🫰 is the last remaining regulator of note opposed to the purchase, but the watchdog and Microsoft recently agreed to put 🫰 their legal battle over the deal on hold and negotiate a compromise.</p &qt;

We are pleased to announce that Microsoft and @PlayStation 🫰 he ave signed a binding agreement to keep Call of Duty on PlayStation following the acquisition of Activision Blizzard. We look 🫰 forward to a future where players globally have more choice to play their favorite games. Phil Spencer (@XboxP3) July 🫰 16, 2024

"From Day One of this acquisition, we ve been committed to address ing the concerns of regulators, platform and game developers, 🫰 and con sumers," Microsoft President and Vice Chair Brad Smith tweeted in response to Spencer's post. "Even after we cross the 🫰 finish line for this deal s approval, we will remain focused on ensuring that Call of Duty remains available on more 🫰 platforms and for more consumers than ever befor e."

Spencer did not disclose the terms of Microsoft's deal with Sony, t hough Stephen 🫰 Totilo of Axios later confirmed that it is 10 years in duration. Microsoft first offered Sony a 10-year deal to 🫰 keep Call of Duty on current and future PlayStation consoles at the end of last year, though the Japanese electronics 🫰 giant turned down the olive branch at the t ime. In an effort to secure approval from regulators, including the FTC 🫰 and CMA, Microsoft went on to sign an agreement with Nintendo to bring the se ries to the company's future consoles. 🫰 It also came to terms with cloud gaming providers like NVIDIA.

Before today, Jim Ryan, the president and CEO of Sony 🫰 Interactive Entertainment, made clear he was strongly opposed to Microsoft's Activision bid. I don t want a new Call of Duty 🫰 deal. I just want to block your merger, Ryan told Activision CEO Bobby Kotick. I told him [Kotick] that I 🫰 thought the transaction was anti-competitive, I hoped that the regulators would do their job and block it, Ryan later said 🫰 during his testimony at the FTC v. Microsoft hearing. But with the purchase all but set to
