The rules of soccer are the same as for football, but with one important caveat: The matches last 90 minutes, with 15 minutes of stoppage time added at the end of each half. On August 19, 1981, the television network of the time, Rede Globo, was founded by Silvio Santos, the second largest network in Brazil. The network's first program was a soccer game between Santos' Flamengo and the local club Botafogo. The game was a 1-1 draw, but Flamengo's victory in the final of the 1981 Campeonato Brasileiro Série A was a significant moment in the history of the network.

As the network grew, it began to broadcast a variety of sports, including soccer. The network's soccer coverage was a major success, and it became a staple of the network's programming. The network's soccer coverage was a major success, and it became a staple of the network's programming.
